PREFACE.

Dear Reader, this work is not got up to find fault with the common Bible, or Authorized Version, but with the hope that by reading it you may have more faith in "the book of books" than ever, and that you may read it more understandingly.

Passages from the King James, or Authorized Version, are given the first place in the comparison. Quotations from the Inspired Translation are given the second place in the comparison, and the punctuation is given just as it is in each of the Bibles.

In the reign of King James of England it took forty-seven scholars seven years to translate the common Bible. They had some former translations to refer to and many manuscripts, and plenty of wealth at their command.

The Inspired Translation of the Bible is a translation, or correction of the Common Bible, by Joseph Smith, by revelation from God. He began the translation in June 1830, and finished it in July 1833. He was then twenty-eight years old.

The fact that Mr. Smith was a man of but limited education, at the time he made this translation, is well known. It is also well known that he was very limited in means, as far as this world's goods are concerned, and he was harassed by mobs almost continuously. So it is plain to be seen that he was only a very small part of the three years actually engaged in the work of translating.

HISTORY OF THE BIBLE.

It is to be hoped that it will be found interesting and profitable reading, to give a few thoughts concerning the Bible and its history, in this preface.

The Bible has all been written by prophets of God, or some of His apostles—all inspired men. It should be understood by every one that much of the Bible is historical. In this case, the inspired writer uses his own words to express the information he wished to convey. Sometimes historical parts of the scriptures contain prophetic words.

When a prophet of God says, "Thus saith the Lord," the words following are the same as God spoke to him, if correctly translated. This is one kind of prophecy.

There is another kind of prophecy. It might appropriately be called prophetic vision. This latter kind is used in the book of Revelation and the book of Daniel, and to a small extent by some of the other prophets. In these cases, the Lord shows by prophetic vision, future events, and the prophet, or apostle, as the case may be, uses his own words to express the information of what the Lord wished to convey.

There are many people at the present time who believe that the Bible is perfect in its translation, but the translators themselves do not make such a claim. The following words are quoted from the latter part of the preface to the Revised Edition of the New Testament, which was put in print a little over twenty-five years ago, and therefore they should be considered high authority on this point.

"We know full well that defects must have their place in a work so long and arduous as this which has now come to an end. Blemishes and imperfections there are in the noble Translation which we have been called upon to revise: blemishes and imperfections will assuredly be found in our own revision. All endeavors to translate the Holy Scriptures into another tongue must fall short of their aim when the obligation is imposed of producing a version that shall be alike literal and idiomatic, faithful to each thought of the original, and yet, in the expression of it, harmonious and free. While we dare to hope, that in places not a few in the New Testament, the introduction of slight changes has cast a new light upon much that was difficult and obscure, we cannot forget how often we have failed in expressing some finer shade in the original, how often idiom has stood in the way of a perfect rendering, and how often the attempt to preserve a familiar cadence has only added another perplexity to those which already beset us."

"Thus, in the review of the work which we have been permitted to complete, our closing words must be words of mingled thanksgiving, humility and prayer. Of thanksgiving, for the many blessings vouchsafed to us throughout the unbroken progress of our corporate labors; of humility, for our failings and imperfection in the fulfillment of our task and of prayer to Almighty God, that the gospel of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ may be more clearly and more freshly shown forth to all who shall be readers of this book:

“Jerusalem Chambers, Westminster Abby, 11th November, 1880.”

From these two quotations from the preface to the Revised Edition of the New Testament it can be seen that the translators say, “blemishes and imperfections there are in the noble Translation, [the common Bible,] which we have been called upon to revise; blemishes and imperfections will assuredly be found in our own revision”—the Revised Version.

There are also some people at the present time who believe that the translators had the original copies of the Bible writers to translate from. But the facts and evidences in the case do not warrant us in believing this to be true. For evidence on this point we will quote from a work called,

THE OLD DOCUMENTS AND THE NEW BIBLE.

BY

J. PATTERSON SMYTHE, L. L. B., B. D.

Published at New York by James Potts & Co., at London by Samuel Baxter & Sons, 1890.

Mr Smythe is a man of the highest authority on this question; he says: “Never did any writing come down through the ages as pure as we have reason to believe did our Hebrew Bible; but that it has come to us word for word as it left the hands of the inspired writers long ago, the evidence will by no means allow us to believe.”—P. 22.

“But what is the value of the textual critic of these venerable documents? How many thousand years do they go back? Have we amongst them the autograph of any inspired writer? Have we manuscripts of at least the time of our Lord? How far do they enable us to fix with certainty the exact original of the Hebrew Old Testament? To the reader who knows something of the New Testament, with their documents reaching up near the days of the apostles, and the many variations nevertheless existing in the text, an acquaintance with these strange old manuscripts can scarcely fail to cause surprise. Not one of them we shall see immediately, is written in the ancient writings. * * * The oldest Hebrew manuscripts in existence is of date little earlier than William the Conqueror. * * * Let us realize what this means. * * * That of the early Old Testament books, we have not a single copy 1,000 years old."—P. 30, 31.

"That the whole Old Testament together was at any period absolutely word for word as it left the hands of the writers, no one who understands its history will venture to say."—P. 67.

From the foregoing evidence it can be seen that the translators had no access to the original manuscripts of the Old Testament. No doubt they were lost or worn out.

These quotations from Mr. Smythe's work are quoted from the preface of "The Three Bibles," by Elder R. Etzenhouser. Some of the texts in the comparison in this work are received from that book, which is acknowledged with thanks.

Let us now introduce to you evidence which goes to show that it is not likely that the translators had the original writings of the New Testament writers. There is a work called—

"COMPANION TO THE REVISED VERSION OF THE NEW TESTAMENT."

BY ALEXANDER ROBERTS, D. D.

Copyrighted 1881 by I. K. Funk & Co., and O. M. Dunham.

Mr. Roberts, D. D., is good authority on a question of this kind. He says, "The number of various readings in the New Testament has been differently estimated at different times. Nor could this have been otherwise. Every new manuscript which is discovered increases the amount, and every more accurate examination of already known manuscripts tends to the same result. Hence, while the varieties of reading in the New Testament were reckoned at about 30,000 in the last century, they are generally referred to as amounting to no less than 150,000 at the present time."—P. 1.

Of manuscripts and their dates, Mr. Roberts says, "There are, in our possession as will immediately be shown, manuscripts of the New Testament dating from the fourth and fifth centuries."—P. 16.

He says again, "Besides some very precious fragments, there are only five copies of the New Testament at all complete which can be referred to a higher antiquity. These are to be dated, as we shall see, between the fourth and sixth centuries."—P. 17.

Mr. Roberts designates these as "A, or the Alexandrian MS.," "B, or the Vatican MS.," "C, or the Ephraem MS.," "D, or the MS. of Beza," "N, or the Sinaitic MS."

Of "B, or Vatican MS.," he says, "Unfortunately it now wants the Epistle to the Hebrews from chapter 9:14, all the Pastoral Epistles, and the book of Revelation."

Of "C, or the Ephraem MS., so far as it has survived it is a very valuable copy of the New Testament. But gaps frequently occur in it, and two whole epistles, second Thesalonians and second John, have been altogether lost."—P. 18 23.

Of "N, or Sinaitic MS.," Mr. Roberts says, "And though it contains many obvious errors, it yields assistance of a kind most precious towards the settlement of the true text of the New Testament."—P. 25.

From all this it can be seen that of the vast number of New Testament manuscripts now extant, the great majority of them date from the fourth and fifth centuries. Only five copies of the New Testament, and these not complete, which can be referred to a greater antiquity, and of these the learned D. D. does not make any claim that they were original writings of the apostles. The evidences in the case are that they were only copies of the original writings.

Let us quote some more from the work of Alexander Roberts, D. D., already referred to. Mr. Roberts proceeds to give the facts of the history and character of the Greek text on which the Authorized Version was founded, or as it is commonly called, the King James Bible :

"When an English version of the New Testament is put into our hands as furnishing a transcript in our own language of God's revelation of himself through Jesus Christ, it is of the most vital importance to be assured of the trustworthiness of the text on which that version has been based. Without this, everything else must be comparatively worthless. * * * The first and gravest question to be asked regarding it has respect to the faithfulness with which the text on which it was based represented the true and original word of God. * * * The illustrious Erasmus comes into view, a man to whom modern thought is, in so many ways, under such deep and lasting obligations. That great scholar was in England in 1515, and April 17th of that year he received a request from Froben, an eminent printer at Basle, to prepare for publication an edition of the Greek New Testament. Though encumbered by other literary labors, Erasmus set about this work with characteristic diligence, and completed it within the too short period of a few months, by February, 1516. The work was immediately published, and thus the original text of the New Testament was, for the first time, given to the world. * * * The first edition of Erasmus was reprinted, with corrections amounting to about two hundred, by Aldus, at Venice, in 1518. A second edition, with more than three hundred improvements, was issued by Erasmus himself in 1519. This was followed by a third edition in 1522. * * * He published his fourth edition in 1527. The fourth edition of Erasmus is thus the most important, and became the basis of all subsequent texts, until what is known as the 'Received Text' was formed. * * * The true successor of Erasmus in this department was Robert Stephens, the famous Parisian printer. He issued two editions in 1546 and 1549, having availed himself in these of some manuscripts in the Royal Library, and of the Complutensian text. But his great edition was the third, issued in 1550. This edition is remarkable as containing the first collection of various readings, amounting, it has been reckoned, to 2,194. But though these had been collected from a considerable number of manuscripts, no critical use was made of them. The text of Erasmus was closely followed, and readings found in it were even clung to when opposed to the authority of all manuscripts. The fourth edition of Stephens was published at Geneva in 1551. In this edition the New Testament is, for the first time, divided into verses, an invention of Stephens. * * * Beza, the reformer, next appears as an editor of the Greek New Testament. He published five editions, the first in 1565, the second in 1576, the third in 1582, the fourth in 1589, and the fifth in 1598. These editions varied somewhat among themselves, but were based throughout upon the text of Stephens."

"And now we have reached the interesting and important point of this sketch, as the history of the printed text of the New Testament just given has led us very near the date at which the Authorized English Version began to be made. It was commenced about 1604, when the above named Greek texts were, in one form or another, generally circulated. Which of them, we ask with eagerness, formed the original from which our common English translation was derived? To this question the answer is, Beza's edition of 1589 was the one usually followed. It had been based on Stephen's edition of 1551, and that again had been derived from the fourth edition of Erasmus, published in 1527. Such is the parentage of the Authorized Version—Beza, Stephens, Erasmus. What manuscript authority, let me ask, is thus represented? Beginning with Erasmus, we find that his resources were meagre indeed, and that even the materials which he had were not fully utilized. It has already been noticed how hastily his first edition was prepared; indeed, he himself said of it that it was rather tumbled into the world, than edited. The manuscripts which he had in his possession are still preserved, one having been recovered some years ago after long having been lost. Some of them bear in themselves the corrections which he made, and show too obvious marks of having been used as 'copy' by the printer. They consisted of the following: In the gospels he principally used a Cursive manuscript of the fifteenth or sixteenth century. This may still be seen at Basle, and is admitted by all to be of a very inferior character. He also possessed another Cursive manuscript of the twelfth century, or earlier and occasionally referred to it. * * *

In the Acts and Epistles he chiefly followed a Cursive manuscript of the thirteenth or fourteenth century, with occasional reference to another of the fifteenth century. * * *

For the Apocalypse he had only one mutilated manuscript. He had thus no documentary materials for publishing a complete edition of the Greek Testament. The consequences would have been that some verses must have been left wanting had not Erasmus taken the Vulgate and conjecturally retranslated the Latin into Greek. Hence has arisen the remarkable fact that in the text from which our Authorized Version was formed, and in the ordinary uncritical editions of the Greek current at the present day, there were and are, words in the professed original for which no Divine authority can be pleaded, but which are entirely due to the learning and imagination of Erasmus. * * *

Thus, then, stood the text of the Greek New Testament when the revisers of the Bishop's Bible set themselves to form from it our present Authorized English Version. Not one of the four most ancient manuscripts was then known to be in existence. * * *

In these circumstances can it be wondered at THAT VAST MULTITUDES OF CHANGES WILL BE FOUND IN THE REVISED ENGLISH VERSION, owing to an amended text? The wonder really is that they are so few, or at least, THAT THEY ARE, IN GENERAL, OF SUCH SMALL IMPORTANCE."—P. 34-44.

From this long quotation it can be seen that Mr. Roberts, D. D., in speaking of the New Testament, says, "such is the parentage of the Authorized Version—Beza, Stephens, Erasmus," and that Erasmus used the "Cursive manuscript of the thirteenth, or fourteenth century," so it is evident he did not have the apostles' original writings.

An important point to be learned from the latter part of this long quotation is "that vast multitudes of changes will be found in the Revised English version," but Mr. Roberts admits, "that they are, in general, of such small importance."

This learned divine, in his "Companion to the Revised Version of the New Testament," on pages 154 and 155, gives the time of the production of the King James Version as from 1604 to 1611, seven years. The number of distinguished scholars employed in the work is forty-seven. He says they received no compensation, except indirectly by way of preferments, and the necessary expenses were mostly paid by the publisher, Robert Barker. Their names are now forgotten, but their work lives on and will never die."

THE REVISED VERSION.

The following is quoted from the preface to the Revised Version of the New Testament:

"The present Revision had its origin in action taken by the convocation of the province of Canterbury in February, 1870, and it has been conducted throughout on the plan laid down in the resolutions of both houses of the province, and more particularly, in accordance with principles and rules drawn up by a special committee of convocation in the following May. Two companies, the one for the Revision of the Authorized Version of the Old Testament, and the other for the revision of the same Version of the New Testament, were formed in the manner specified in the resolutions, and the work was commenced on the twenty-second day of June, 1870. Shortly afterwards, steps were taken, under a resolution passed by both houses of the convocation, for inviting the co-operation of American scholars; and eventually two committees were formed in America, for the purpose of acting with the two English companies, on the basis of the principles and rules drawn up by the committee of convocation."

—P. 15.

From this it can be seen that English and American divines were engaged in getting up the Revised Version of the Bible.

Mr. Roberts in his "Companion to the Revised Version of the New Testament," tells us on page 165: "The whole number of English revisers in 1880 amounted to fifty-two; twenty-seven in the Old Testament company, and twenty-five in the New Testament company."

The American committee "consisting of about thirty members, was formed in 1871, and entered upon active work in October, 1872."

From these two quotations it can be seen that there were fifty-two English revisers, and thirty American ones, eighty-two in all, engaged in the revision of the Bible.

The following two paragraphs are taken from the preface of the Revised edition of the Old Testament:

"The revision of the Authorized Version was undertaken in consequence of a resolution passed by both houses of the convocation of the province of Canterbury, as has been fully explained in the preface to the Revised Version of the New Testament, which was first published in May, 1881."

"It could not but be expected that in the course of fourteen years, many changes would take place in the members of the company. Of the original number who first put their hands to the work on the 30th of June, 1870, only fifteen now remain. Ten of the company have been removed by death, and two resigned; the places of these were filled from time to time, by others, but since October, 1875, no new members have been added. The revision was completed in eighty-five sessions, ending on the 20th of June, 1884; and it occupied 792 days. The greater part of the sessions were for ten days each, and each day the company generally sat for six hours. The labor therefore has been great, but it has been given ungrudgingly; and now with a feeling of deep thankfulness to Almighty God, and earnest hope that their endeavors may with his blessing tend to a clearer knowledge of the Old Testament scriptures, the revisers bring their long task to a close.

"Jerusalem Chambers, Westminster Abbey, 10th July, 1884."

The sum of all this evidence is this: Eighty-two English and American scholars were engaged fourteen years in making the Revised Version of the whole Bible. They began in June, 1870, and finished in June, 1884; and the Revised Version of the New Testament was first published in May, 1881.

I have compared more texts from the Revised Version of the Bible, with the common Bible, than there are of texts from the James Translation in this work, expecting to find its imperfections corrected by the late Revised version. You may imagine how surprised I was, for in all that amount of comparing of the two Bibles, I found only two or three texts of the inconsistencies corrected, and not one! no not one! of the contradictions of the Bible are corrected.

The late translators of the Bible have changed many words where it did not make any difference one way or the other, but where a real inconsistency, or a contradiction occurs, they have, as a rule, changed nothing. You know the James translation, in giving the account of the crucifixion of Jesus, tells that two thieves were also put to death at the same time. The account also tells us that the unbelieving people who were there, mocked and reviled the Saviour. St. Matthew, in speaking of this, says, "the THIEVES also, which were crucified with him, cast the same in his teeth."—Matt. 27:44.

Mark 15:32 says, "and THEY that were crucified with him reviled him."

Luke 23:39-41 says, "and ONE of the malefactors which were hanged railed on him, * * but the other answering rebuked him, saying, * * this man hath done nothing amiss."

Now it does not require a great amount of skill to be able to see that Matthew and Mark teach that both the thieves reviled the Saviour, while Luke tells us that only one of the malefactors which were hanged railed on him. The circumstances in each of the three gospels are all alike, but the difference is in the number of the thieves who reviled. If Matthew and Mark are right in regard to the number of thieves, then Luke is wrong. If Luke is right, then Matthew and Mark are wrong. Now you would naturally expect that the learned divines who got up the Revised Version of the New Testament would have corrected this, but they did not.

Here is the account of the crucifixion of the Saviour quoted from the Revised Version of the New Testament: "And the ROBBERS also that were crucified with him cast upon him the same reproach."—Matt. 27:44, R. V.

"And THEY that were crucified with him reproached him."—Mark 15:32, R. V.

“And ONE of the malefactors which were hanged railed on him, * * but the other answered and rebuking him said, * * this man hath done nothing amiss.”—Luke 23: 39-42, R. V.

You will notice that St. Matthew and St. Mark in this Bible both teach that the two men put to death when Jesus was, reviled him, and that St. Luke says only one of them did so. So the main point of error was not corrected by the late translators.

Where the common Bible says “the thieves cast the same in his teeth,” the Revised Version says “the robbers,” &c. Now, you know, this is a matter of little importance whether you call them thieves or robbers. Well, dear reader, this is a fair sample of the work done by the late translators. They changed many words where it did not make any difference in the meaning, but where a real inconsistency, or contradiction, occurs, as a rule they changed none. The translators have done just as that eminent scholar, Alexander Roberts in his “Companion to the Revised Version of the New Testament,” says they have done, as already noticed, “that vast multitudes of changes will be found in the Revised English Version,” but he says, “that they are, in general, of such small importance.”

Well, we must give the late translators credit for what they have done. They did correct these texts of the common Version, and here they are:

JAMES TRANSLATION.

REVISED VERSION.

1 Corinthians 4:

4 For I know nothing by myself; yet I am not hereby justified; but he that judgeth me is the Lord.

4 For I know nothing against myself; yet I am not hereby justified; but he that judgeth me is the Lord.

1 Corinthians 10:

24 Let no man seek his own, but every man anothers' wealth.

24 Let no man seek his own, but each his neighbor's good.

Titus 2:

11 For the grace of God that bringeth salvation hath appeared to all men, 11 For the grace of God hath appeared, bringing salvation to all men.

Besides these, there are a few texts in the Revised Version which are not corrected, but are somewhat improved in consistency. Then there are some texts in this Bible which the translators have made worse. Here is one of them:

“Now if we put the horses’ bridles into their mouths, that they may obey us, we turn about their whole body also.”—James 3:3, Revised Version.

The James Translation in this place reads, “Behold, we put bits in the horses’ mouths, that they may obey us; and we turn about their whole body.”—James 3:3. It is plain to be seen that the common Bible gives the correct rendering of this text.

Here is another place where the James Translation is more correct than the Revised Version; “And I heard another out of the altar say, even so, Lord God Almighty, true and righteous are thy judgments.”—Rev. 16:7.

“And I HEARD THE ALTAR saying, yea, O Lord God, the Almighty, true and righteous are thy judgments.”—Rev. 16:7, Revised Version.

These are fair samples of the Revised Version of the Bible. Wherever there is a real inconsistency, or a contradiction in the common Bible, you will find the same in this Bible, with but very rare exception; so there is nothing to be gained by giving quotations from the Revised Version, in the comparison in this work, for both Bibles read so much alike. So this work will be a comparison between the James Translation and the Inspired Version.

THE INSPIRED TRANSLATION.

The Inspired Translation is a revision, or translation, of the more erroneous parts of the common Bible, by Joseph Smith, the prophet, by revelation from God. He did the work of translating in three years, besides doing a great amount of other ministerial labor during the same period of time. After his untimely death, in June, 1844, by the hands of a lawless mob, the manuscript was kept by his widow, and in the year 1867 it was published by the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

In the main, the Inspired Translation and the James Translation read almost word for word. This should be evidence to everyone who is skeptical of the divine origin of the common Bible, that this great book is of God, from the fact that the Bible translated by revelation from God endorses so well as it does the common version of the Scriptures.

There are some texts in the James Translation, which are not correctly translated. They are only few when compared with the vast number of words in the Bible, yet to count them it makes quite a number. They are corrected by the Inspired Translation. A good many, but not all of them, are introduced in this work.

It is to be hoped that everyone into whose hands this book may come will read the preface as well as the rest of it, as there is much useful information to be gained by doing so. That this work may be interesting and profitable reading to everyone, is the sincere wish of

THE AUTHOR.

Now if you will read Gen. 14:12, James translation, you will find it says: "And they took Lot, Abram's brother's son." So it was Lot, his brother's son, was taken captive, and not "his brother," as the James translation erroneously says in this text.

Another point to be learned from the Inspired translation here is this: it says, "he armed his trained men AND they that were born in his own house, three hundred and eighteen." So it is plain to be seen from this, that only a part of those three hundred and eighteen were born in his own house. If those men were all born in Abram's house, as the James translation says, then many, many hundreds of persons would necessarily be born there, in order to have three hundred and eighteen capable of bearing arms:

The following three texts are correct in the James Translation. They read alike in both Bibles. They are introduced to show that Pharaoh hardened his own heart.

1 Samuel 6:

6 Wherefore then do ye harden your hearts, as the Egyptians and Pharaoh hardened their hearts? when he had wrought wonderfully among them, did they not let the people go and they departed?

These texts show conclusively that Pharaoh hardened his own heart. The following eight texts from the James Translation are somewhat contradictory to the above, because they teach that God hardened Pharaoh's heart. But the Inspired Translation is in harmony all through, that Pharaoh hardened his own heart.

Why if God hardened Pharaoh's heart, as the James Translation says, he who would not be responsible for what he did. It would take away his agency, which God has given to every man. But God brought his judgments upon Pharaoh, which he could not do in justice, had not Pharaoh hardened his own heart.

The following four texts from the J. Translation are correct. They read alike in both Bibles. They are quoted to show the character God gives of himself. That He is not a being that will do something and then repent of it, that he is an all wise being, the same yesterday, today, and forever.

These four texts show plainly that God does not do something and then repent of it. "In Him there is no variableness, neither shadow of turning."

The following ten texts from the James Translation are somewhat contradictory to the above four, because they teach that God repents. But the Inspired Translation is in harmony with them, for it shows that it is man that is required to do the repenting.

34 Simeon blessed them, and said unto Mary his mother, Behold, this child is set for the fall and rising again of many in Israel, and for a sign which shall be spoken against;

35 (Yea, a sword shall pierce through thine own soul also,) that the thoughts of many hearts may be revealed.

34 And Simeon blessed them, and said unto Mary, Behold, this child is set for the fall and rising again of many in Israel, and for a sign which shall be spoken against.

35 Yea, a spear shall pierce THROUGH HIM to the wounding of thine own soul also; that the thoughts of many hearts may be revealed.

The fulfillment of this remarkable prophecy of Simeon took place at the crucifixion of the Saviour. "But one of the soldiers with a spear pierced his side, and forthwith came there out blood and water." St. John 19:34.

From this it is plain to be seen that the Inspired Tran. gives the true rendering of this text in the comparison. "A spear shall pierce through him to the wounding of thine [Mary's] own soul also."

Perhaps you would like to know how this text reads in the Revised Version of the Bible, a work which we have shown in the preface, by high authority, that eighty-four eminent scholars labored on for fourteen years to translate. Well, here is how it reads in that Bible. Remember this is Simeon's address to Mary, the mother of Jesus. "Yea a sword shall pierce through thine own soul; that the thoughts out of many hearts may be revealed." Revised Version, Luke 2: 35

No doubt you will feel like exclaiming, why didn't the late translators correct this error of the James Translation, when this prophecy of Simeon and the fulfillment of it, was all recorded in the New Testament right there before their eyes!

Yes! that is what we are all wondering at; why didn't they? But they didn't; let the cause be what it may. And more than this; they have corrected only two or three of the less important texts of the inconsistencies of the whole Bible, several of which are not introduced in this work.

Let us now call your attention to some contradictions that are recorded in the James Translation of the Bible.

cord of myself, yet my record is true.

These quotations show a contradiction in the common Version, while the Inspired Translation reads alike in both places, the witness of Jesus, or record, "is true."

JESUS BAPTIZED.

John 3: 22.--After these things came JESUS and his disciples into the land of Judea; and there HE tarried and BAPTIZED.

23 After these things came Jesus and his disciples into the land of Judea; and there he tarried and baptized.

John 4:1.—When therefore the Lord knew the Pharisees had heard that Jesus made and baptized more disciples than John.

1 When therefore the Pharisees had heard that Jesus made and baptized more disciples than John.

2 (Though JESUS HIMSELF BAPTIZED NOT, but his disciples.)

2 They sought more dilligently some means that they might put him to death; for they received John as a prophet, but they believed not on Jesus.

3 Now the Lord knew this, though he himself bapized NOT SO MANY as his disciples.

You will notice that these texts from the J. Translation conflict with each other, while the other Bible is in harmony. It admits that Jesus baptized, but "not so many as his disciples."

Luke 23:39.—And ONE of the malefactors which were hanged railed on him, saying, If thou be Christ, save thyself and us.

By this you can see that both Matthew and Mark state that the two thieves reviled Jesus, while Luke says only one of them did so.

The I. Translation in each quotation says only one of them reviled the Saviour.

crucified with him, reviled him also.

39 And one of the malefactors who was crucified with him, railed on him, saying, If thou be the Christ, save thyself and us.

THE CONVERSION OF SAUL.

Acts 9:4-7.—And he fell to the earth, and heard a voice saying unto him, Saul, Saul, why persecutest thou me? * * * And the men which journeyed with him STOOD SPEECHLESS, HEARING A VOICE, but seeing no man.

Acts 22:7-9.—And I fell unto the ground, and heard a voice saying unto me, Saul, Saul, why persecutest thou me? * * * And they that were with me saw indeed the light, and were afraid; but THEY HEARD NOT THE VOICE of him that spake to me.

Acts 26: 14.—And when WE WERE ALL FALLEN TO THE EARTH, I heard a voice speaking unto me, and saying in the Hebrew tongue, Saul, Saul, why persecutest thou me?

4-7 And he fell to the earth, and heard a voice saying unto him, Saul, Saul, why persecutest thou me? * * * And they who were journeying with him saw indeed the light, and were afraid; but they heard not the voice of him that spake to me.

7-9 And I fell unto the ground, and heard a voice saying unto me, Saul, Saul, why persecutest thou me? * * * they that were with me saw indeed the light, and were afraid; but they heard not the voice of him that spake to me.

14 And when we were all fallen to the earth, I heard a voice speaking unto me, and saying in the Hebrew tongue, Saul, Saul, why persecutest thou me?

It can easily be seen by the first of these three texts that the men who journeyed with Saul, "stood speechless," while the last text says, "We were all fallen to the earth."

Again; the first of these three texts says, the men who accompanied Saul, "heard a voice," while the second text says, "They heard not the voice."

The Inspired Translation agrees all through that the men "heard not the voice," and that they as well as Saul, "were all fallen to the earth."

MEN SAW GOD.

The three next texts from the James Translation read alike in both Bibles. They are introduced to show that the Bible teaches that men have seen God.

Just notice how the two last texts contradict the first three, by saying, "No man hath seen God."

J. TRANSLATION.

Genesis 32:30.—And Jacob called the name of the place Penial, for I have seen God face to face and my life is preserved.

SANCTUARY
LIBRARY

Now if you will read 2 Chron. 21:5 and twentieth verses you will see that Jehoram, the father of Ahaziah, was only forty years old when he died. So it is impossible for Ahaziah to have been "forty and two years old when he began to reign;" because, if he was, he would be two years older than his own father.

You may well ask, why didn't the translators who got up the Revised Edition of the Bible correct this error about Ahaziah's age, like the Inspired Translation did? Yes, that is what we are all wondering about, why didn't they? Well they didn't, let the cause be what it may. And more than this, not one of the contradictions of the common Bible did they correct. And of the great number of the inconsistencies I have compared expecting to find them corrected by the Revised Edition, I found only two or three minor ones corrected by that version of the Bible.

CONCLUSION.

Although it is mentioned in the preface, it will be well to again say, that the James Translation and the Inspired read almost word for word with each other, except in such passages as are introduced in this work. Now from the fact that the Bible translated by revelation from God endorses so well as it does the common Bible, it should be good evidence to every one who is skeptical of the divine authority of the James Translation, that in the main it is correct and reliable scripture.

Now, dear reader, it is to be hoped you have read this book from the beginning, and that you are able to see the superiority of the Inspired Translation. Now the question naturally arises, how did Joseph Smith succeed in making a translation of the Bible which is so much more correct than the common version, when the learned divines made such a hopeless failure of it? There is no use of saying he did not do it; because no other man, either alive or dead, ever claimed to be the author of the Inspired Translation, but Mr. Smith. And you cannot get out of it by saying there is no such a Bible, for there is. It is published by The Saints' Herald Publishing Co., Lamoni, Iowa. The only correct way to account for how Joseph made this translation is to admit he did it just as he claimed he did—by revelation from God.

The work that Joseph Smith has done in translating the Bible, is, after all, only an introduction to the evidences which we can easily show you from your own Bible, that he was a real prophet of God, but space will not permit to dwell but little upon such evidences.

When we tell the people the founder of this latter day dispensation was a prophet of God, and that he wrote the commandments of God, and they are scripture, just like the prophets of God in olden times wrote scripture, they very often say, "The book of Revelation was written to complete the canon of scripture," and then they quote, "If any man shall add unto these things, God shall add unto him the plagues that are written in this book: And if any man shall take away from the words of the book of this prophecy, God shall take away his part out of the book of life, and out of the holy city, and from the things which are written in this book.”—Rev. 22:18-19.

No doubt the men who quote these words really believe they prohibit the Lord from speaking through a prophet, and causing him to write scripture after the book of Revelation was written. This is a mistake. Turn to Deut. 4:2, which says, “Ye shall not add unto the word which I command you, neither shall ye diminish ought from it.” Now you can see these words teach the same thing as those quoted from Revelation. Now Moses wrote these words, and yet God has had many prophets who wrote scripture since Moses’ time.

These texts prohibit men—unauthorized men—from adding to the word of the Lord, or taking aught from it; but God has the right, and He does from time to time, raise up a prophet who writes his commandments, and they are scripture. But you will notice each prophet writes his own book.

Now turn to Deut. 12:32, where Moses said, “What thing soever I command you, observe to do it: thou shalt not add thereto, nor diminish from it.” Now you know there were many prophets in Israel since Moses lived.

This same point is taught in Prov. 30:6: “Add thou not unto his words, lest he reprove thee, and thou be found a liar.” And God had several prophets who wrote scripture since these words were first written. Now if you were one of those who thought the words of Rev. 22:18-19 prevented there being any more prophets of God who would write scripture, it is to be hoped you will give it up.

You believe that there was what is called the Patriarchal dispensation, and that God revealed His will to those ancient worthies.

You believe there was a Mosaic dispensation, and that the Lord revealed his will to Moses and several prophets after him.

You also believe that there was what is called the Apostolic dispensation, which was introduced by the Saviour, and continued after Him by the apostles.

Now you are able to see that the Lord gave revelation to men in these different dispensations, and that He could not give a dispensation of the gospel without revealing His will to the leader of the different dispensations.

Well, the great modern prophet was the first man in these latter days to announce that God had, by him, introduced a new dispensation of the gospel, called, "The dispensation of the fulness of times." But the most of the people of his day, said there was not to be any more dispensations. Then Joseph called their attention to the fact that St. Paul, as well as he, said there was. Here are the words of Paul: "Having made known unto us the mystery of his will, according to his good pleasure, which he hath purposed in himself: That in THE DISPENSATION OF THE FULNESS OF TIMES he might gather together in one all things in Christ, both which are in heaven, and which are on earth; even in him."—Eph. 1:9-10.

Now from the fact that St. Paul said there was to be a dispensation of the fulness of times, at which time God will "gather together in one all things in Christ, both which are in heaven, and which are on earth," it is plain to be seen that this is to be a latter day dispensation, and because the latter day prophet was the first one to point this out, it shows he was right, while others, before this, knew nothing about it.

Now can you tell of any proper reason why God would not be just as likely to give revelation from heaven in this, "the dispensation of the fulness of times," as He did in all former dispensations? Especially should this be the case, since there were so many hundred years since apostolic days, in which there was no prophet of God, and therefore no revelation given.

The great modern prophet built up the church according to the apostolic pattern, and taught the laws of God in harmony with the apostles of the New Testament; while all previous church builders in the past four hundred years have failed to do this.

Now since Joseph Smith was a REAL PROPHET OF GOD, you would naturally expect that the men of his day, that called themselves MINISTERS OF GOD would hail with delight a prophet of God. But did they do this? No! they did the very opposite, with rare exceptions. They opposed him and the great work God had called him to do. Now we will not charge all those men with wilfully opposing him; many of them thought they were doing right in doing so.

You know the Saviour said to the apostles, "The time cometh, that whosoever killeth you will think that he doeth God service," John 16:2. No doubt there were several cases of this kind in apostolic days. The case of Saul persecuting the church was one fulfillment of the Saviour's words in this text. And the men who called themselves ministers of God and opposed the prophet Joseph, was another case of the fulfillment of the words of Jesus in this same text.

It has always been the case throughout the world's history for the majority of the people to call prophets of God, false prophets; and to accept false prophets for true ones, and these latter days are no exception to this rule. There is a saying, that history repeats itself, and it has been true in the case of the way the people opposed Joseph, a real prophet of God, and thought he was a false prophet, and many of them thought they did God service by persecuting him. Yes, some of those that opposed Joseph, but not all of them, thought he was an imposter to even claim to be a prophet of God, because they believed the days of prophets were gone by forever, and they persecuted him on this account.

Some of the enemies of the great prophet would accuse him of some crime. He was brought before the courts of the country and honorably acquitted. Then another enemy of his would falsely accuse him of something else. He would be again tried, and again it was found they had no grounds for their accusation. This kind of work has been carried on to quite an extent, untill no less than thirty-eight times he has been tried by the law of the country, and every time honorably acquitted. Then every little while some person would get up a lawless mob and drive him out of that part of the country, and he would have to flee to save his life. And this is the way the people used him when he was translating the Bible. So you can see he could only get a day or two at a time to work at the translating before he would be disturbed by his enemies—enemies to him without any proper cause.

The most of people think that almost any person can tell a true prophet, or a true teacher of religion, as the case many be, from a false one. This is just where they make their mistake. It is about as difficult to tell them apart as it is to tell genuine money from counterfeit. You know there are a good many hundred different denominations of what is called Christian people at the present time. Now these contradict each other on several important points. It is evident each denomination would naturally expect a man to teach to suit each of these different organizations, or they would say he was a false prophet, or false teacher, as the case may be. For instance: there are many who honestly believe that it is unnecessary to be baptized to be saved. So to suit them, a man would have to preach that way, or they would call him false prophet; while others honestly believe baptism is necessary to salvation, so this latter class would call false what the first called true.

Again: there are many people who believe sprinkling is baptism, while others believe nothing but immersion is baptism. So the first party of these would expect a man to preach sprinkling was baptism, or they would call him a false prophet, or a false preacher; while the latter party would call him false prophet if he did so.

Again: there are many who believe the first day of the week is the true Sabbath day for Christian people; while others believe the seventh day is the proper time. So in this case, what the first party called true, the latter would call false.

Then again: there are many people who honestly believe there should not be any more prophets of God in these latter days. While others honestly believe there should be prophets of God now as well as in olden times. So the first class of these would call false what the latter class would call true. And so it is all the world over.

It was the Saviour that spoke these words: "Beware of false prophets, which come to you in sheep's clothing, but inwardly they are ravening wolves. YE shall know them by their fruits."—Matt. 7:15-16. Well what are the fruits of a minister of God, or a prophet of God, as the case may be? It is the doctrine he teaches, and Godly actions connected with it. And who are the "ye" that know the true from false prophets? It certainly does not mean the majority of the people, for they gave their consent to put Jesus to death, and His apostles after Him. "Ye," means the true followers of Jesus Christ. They know what the teachings of a true prophet are, and are therefore able to tell true from false.

Do not get the idea in your mind that the people are more enlightened now than they used to be, that they could tell a true prophet from a false one better than they did in apostolic days, for such is not the case. The majority of the people of this country gave their consent to persecute a prophet of God, and permitted him to be killed by a lawless mob in June, 1844.

The best way to tell true prophets from false ones is by revelation from God. Go before the Lord with an honest heart and ask Him, was Joseph Smith a true prophet? And if you ask in faith you will receive the answer YES. God has answered many in the affirmative to this question, in these days.

The next best way to know if he was a true prophet is to compare his teachings with the scriptures. True prophets always teach in harmony with the scriptures.

Now, in conclusion, this is my testimony to every one. The founder of this latter day dispensation was a real prophet of God. The Lord has given revelation from heaven by him, as in days of old. For this reason we understand the Bible much better than our sectarian friends, for we have heard from God quite recently, while they have not heard from Him since apostolic days—about 1800 years ago.

As the New Testament helps to explain the Old Testament, so does the latter day revelations from God help to explain both parts of the Bible. So, dear friends who are outside of a knowledge of this latter day gospel, which is a reproduction of the apostolic; learn of L. D. Saints. Repent and be baptized by the true ministry God has sent to administer in the gospel in these latter days. Then do as the Apostle Paul recommends: "Grow in grace, and in a knowledge of the Lord Jesus Christ," by learning the commandments of God and obeying them. Live faithful to the end, and you will be saved in the celestial glory of God's kingdom,

EDWARD T. COUCH.
